MARSHALL PRIMARY ELECTION

On Saturday Drove Out 3,800 Republican Votes, the Best Showing Ever Made There.

DR. STEELE NAMED FOR SHERIFF

And T. J. Parsons Renominated for Prosecuting Attorney—Roseberry for Assessor.

The Republicans of Marshall county held their primaries Saturday and a very strong ticket was placed in the field. Nearly 3,800 votes were polled, which was the largest vote ever cast at a primary in the county, and Marshall will give a larger Republican majority next fall than ever before. The contest for the different offices has been very hot, yet the best of feeling has prevailed and all will work hard for the success of the entire ticket at the coming election.

Greater interest was taken in the contests for sheriff and prosecuting attorney than for the other offices, which accounts for the lack of complete returns from some of the precincts. Dr. S. M. Steele was nominated for sheriff, receiving 1,248 votes, J. K. Chase being second and Dr. M. A. Dowler, third.

T. J. Parsons received the nomination for prosecuting attorney, but the complete vote could not be had.

J. T. Roseberry was renominated for assessor of the first assessment district. The vote for assessor of the second assessment district was not received, but the friends of G. B. Games claim he will have a majority.

For house of delegates Josiah Sinclair and W. H. Harris received the greater number of votes.

The contest for county commissioner is undecided, but at sixteen precincts in the northern part of the county, L. B. Purdy has a majority over C. B. Wilson of 76 votes, and his friends claim that he will continue his lead.

The candidate for county surveyor, Wilbert Jones, had no opposition.

The vote for district officers in Washington district is the only one known. T. W. Manning and L. G. Hammond were nominated for justices of the peace, Jason Wright for constable and Isaac Rodgers for road surveyor.

The primary was held under the Australian ballot system, which had a tendency to cut down the vote for all candidates except those for sheriff, which very nearly represents the number of votes cast. The complete returns can not be had till some time to-day, when the ballots are returned.

The returns as received to Sunday night are as follows:

For justices of the peace in Union district, which includes Benwood, McMehen and Sherrard, the winners are likely Henry Riddle and Harry M. Smith, the latter beating Squire Lacey by about twelve votes, although it will take the complete returns to tell. Milroy Marple and Isaiah Stevens were the other candidates.

Brooke Glass House Burns.

Early Sunday morning, the Brooke glass house in Wellburg, owned by the North Wheeling Glass Company, burned to the ground, entailing a loss of about $20,000, partially insured. The building was twice discovered on fire Saturday night, and both times the blaze was extinguished by the watchmen, but the third time it got a better start and was soon beyond control. The Wellburg fire department was unable to make a successful fight, owing to an accident at the pumping station, which had disabled the pumping engines.

A Very Short Session.

Yesterday's regular meeting of the Ohio Valley Trades and Labor Assembly was a record-breaker in point of duration. The session opened and closed within half an hour, and nothing of importance was transacted. Following the meeting, the committees having in charge the assembly's picnic next Saturday got together and perfected arrangements for that affair.

Credentialed delegates from Plumbers' Local Union No. 83; John Vierheller, George Archibald and George Hamilton.

The proposed labor ticket was not discussed, and this movement seems to be regarded as a dead issue.

FIRST Grand Concert Monday evening, June 11, 1900, at Frick's Summer Garden, Martin's Ferry, Ohio, by the celebrated Metzer's Band. Grand display of fireworks at night.

FIREMEN'S DAY

Yesterday at Bellaire—Memorial Exercises and a Visit From the Sistersville Volunteer Firemen.

Yesterday was a great day in Bellaire. In the afternoon it seemed more like Fourth of July than Sunday to the uninitiated. It was the firemen's memorial day; it was also the Golden Eagle memorial day, and it was the day the firemen of Sistersville came on an excursion to visit their fellow firemen of Bellaire. About one o'clock a brass band marched up to the city building, and after a few patriotic airs the firemen, in full dress, white shirts and black pants, fell into line, each carrying a bunch of flowers, and headed by the band, they marched to the cemetery, where services appropriate to the memory of departed members were held, and their graves strewn with flowers. E. E. Clevenger made a fitting address.

Just as they reached the outskirts of the city the Mechanics' band marched down street under a quick step air to the hall of the Golden Eagles, and while they were arranging for the parade to the cemetery to kindly remember the dead, the excursion from Sistersville landed, and under the lead of the Thistle band the hook and ladder company of Sistersville, in full uniform, marched to the city building. They had been met by a delegation of the Bellaire firemen, and were welcomed at the Duquesne hook and ladder house. The firemen made a splendid appearance in their turnout to honor the dead, and so did the Golden Eagles.

The majority of the firemen, with their band, returned in an hour to greet the visitors from Sistersville, who had been taken to the Arlington restaurant for lunch by the committee in charge, and after they had cooled off after the long march, they made it as pleasant as possible for all present.

The visiting firemen remained until last evening, when they returned, no doubt well pleased with the cordial welcome of the Bellaire firemen. There were quite a number of visitors besides the firemen. They did not forget their mascot, in the shape of a diminutive man, and it is no disparagement to the other members to say that the little fellow attracted the most attention.
